

December 2014

Welcome to the December 2014 Women in High Performance Computing newsletter

Supercomputing 2014

Two weeks ago Women in HPC took over Supercomputing as we held the first ever Women in HPC workshop. The workshop consisted of a series of talks from Professor Barbara Chapman from the University of Houston, Texas, sharing her experiences working HPC and from early career women working in HPC, and finished up with a fantastic panel answering questions from the audience on equality in the HPC community. You can read about all of our activities at Supercomputing 2014 here.

If you attended the workshop please take the time to visit the feedback website and let us know what you thought of the event.

WHPC in 2015

We would like to know what you want from the Women in HPC network next year. We have many ideas, but at this stage a limited amount of time, so we want to know what you want from us. If you have ideas or want to give your opinion on some of the options open to us please visit our quick survey. The survey takes no more than a minute and will help shape WHPC in 2015 and beyond.

Social Media

You can now keep in touch with WHPC in between newsletters by visiting us on Facebook, LinkedIn and Twitter.

And one final thing: 2015 IEEE WIE ILC Travel Grant

IEEE are running a Women in Engineering International Leadership Conference (2015 WIE ILC <http://iee-wie-ilc.org/>) to be held 23-25 April 2015 in the capital of Silicon Valley, San Jose, CA. This year's conference has the theme "Accelerating innovative women who change the world". IEEE are offering travel grants to cover the cost of registration and a fixed stipend of up to $1000. The deadline for applying is 15 December 2015. <http://iee-wie-ilc.org/grants/>.

If you have any suggestions, comments or items you would like to include in future newsletters please get in touch by email. We are particularly keen to here from event organisers or programmes that are keen to recruit women and would like to have their information shared in the Opportunities section of our newsletter.
